The top Turks and Caicos Resort on Providenciales is possibly The Grace Bay Club, a secluded palm fringed all suite hotel. It is on a 12 mile powder white sand beach, and is designed like a Spanish Villa.

The resort has two parts, a single for households, the other for couples.

The rooms in the hotel are really effectively furnished with beautiful cool soft contemporary caribbean colours. There is a huge living room with a stunning view of the ocean, and a kitchenette with a washer/dryer and a coffee machine for Cappuccinos.

The adults only part of the hotel also has its personal pool with massive beds, and a jacuzzi.

The bedrooms have black floors which beautifully offsets the white bed linen, and sea blue furnishings.

The loved ones, 'villa' part of the hotel is really 1 of two 5 floor buildings, and once more these suites are very nice indeed. They have everything from DVD Players, marble kitchen, large beds, superb bathrooms, and as you would count on immaculately maintained and cleaned every single day.

The beach of course is quite good certainly, and has been rated as the most stunning beach in the world. You can literally walk for miles on it. The biggest drawback is the amount of construction work going on, and if care is not taken then Grace Bay could totally shed its uniquely exclusive Caribbean really feel. Dig up further on this related article by browsing to go here. Don't forget also that Grace Bay is a public beach.

The Grille restaurant, [casual but elegant bistro sort - correct on the sea] and the Anacanoa Restaurant, [very romantic] are really very good, but every little thing is very expensive and suffers a ten% service charge.

The Grace Bay Club is a delightful hotel, if somewhat expensive. It is surely one of the prime Providenciales Hotels on the Turks and Caicos islands, but the general service levels from the staff need to have enhancing. To discover additional info, you are able to gander at: team.
